Faces of the fallen

A man and child quietly view the portraits of more than 1,300 service-members who have died in the Afghanistan and Iraq wars. More than 200 artists contributed to the display at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D.C. During the dedication ceremony in March, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Richard B. Myers said the portraits "captured the spirit of those who have given their lives and really the spirit of all the brave men and women who serve." Hundreds of family members crowded the ceremonial hall, many seeing the paintings for the first time.
